Description

Curious little drinking horn circled in silver, and certainly made from a ram's horn, early 19th century. The silver mount bears the name "JUAN FERMIN 2d AGURTO" around the neck, and at the end, it is engraved with a cursive "E", accompanied by a square symbol. The horn is very thin and translucent, barely 1 mm thick. No hallmark is visible on the mount, a silver chain connects the neck to the end, and a flat cut at the base allows it to be placed. Engraved round and spiral motifs adorn the body of the object. Its small dimensions suggest a birth or "communion" gift; the Agurto surname is found especially in Latin America, notably in Chile... Very good condition with logical traces of use, the object is waterproof. Length: 12.5 cm; Width: 6 cm: Height: 10.6 cm Weight = 134 grams Extremely
