Description

Charming oil on wood attributed to Chauvelot, depicting a hilly view of the Lot in a soft and luminous atmosphere. In the foreground, large white and blue agapanthus frame a lush garden, while in the background opens a vast panorama of hills bathed in light. The artist deploys a soft and harmonious color palette, dominated by soft greens, vaporous blues and pink touches, creating an impression of calm and serenity. The post-impressionist technique is reflected in a supple and nervous touch, sensitive to atmospheric variations, and in an original framing that contrasts the plant intimacy of the foreground with the infinite depth of the landscape. Later frame in dark wood and gilded rod, in good condition with slight traces of time.
