He chose to leave for Paris in 1908 to study at the School of Decorative Arts. He exhibited at the Salon des Artistes Français in 1910 and began teaching the following year. He received several medals (including a gold one at the 1925 Salon). During the Great War, he was mobilized. He resumed his career in 1925 by traveling to Europe to meet other artists, discover new works and find inspiration. He exhibited in Belfort and Langres with several artists including Jules Adler, with whom he had artistic similarities. He won a gold medal at the 1937 World's Fair and was then elected vice-president of the Salon des artistes
