Description

White marble sculpture from the early 19th century, neoclassical. Depicts a Danaïde on a basin. The features correspond to the ancient Greek canons in the tradition of the neoclassical school. The sculpture is made of exacerbated curves and uninterrupted volutes, from the hair to the ends of the fingers to illustrate a form of softness attributed to femininity. Very finely carved. French work circa 1800. Excellent condition. Dimensions 55 x 25 x 22 cm.
