Description

Original watercolor signed lower right depicting a picturesque view of the famous Notre-Dame Cathedral in Rouen, captured at the bend of a busy street with colorful facades. The artist sensitively captures the Norman light and the contrasts between the medieval architecture of the half-timbered houses and the Gothic majesty of the building. Pierre Le Trividic, painter and watercolorist of Breton origin, distinguished himself with his urban scenes and vibrant landscapes, where the influence of Impressionism blends with a personal touch full of vivacity and character. A work of beautiful chromatic intensity, testifying to the artist's poetic and architectural view of the city of Rouen.
