Description

Jaeger-LeCoultre Brass 8 - Day Straight Lined Skeleton Mantel Clock -1950 Boxed Design and Materials: It features a square gilded brass frame and a transparent Perspex dial, often noted for its minimalist aesthetic and ability to showcase the intricate inner workings of the clock. The hour markers are typically gilded square studs or blocks.Movement: This clock houses a 16-jewel "baguette" or "inline" skeleton bridge manual wind movement, meaning the components are arranged in a straight line, visible through the transparent case.Origin: Made by Jaeger-LeCoultre in La Chaux-de-Fons, Switzerland.Functionality: As an 8-day timepiece, it requires winding approximately once a week to maintain its operation.Historical Context: This model embodies the linear and
