Description
-------------

1934 Roberts & Belk Art Deco Solid Silver Polygon Sides Round Top Sugar Shaker A sterling silver sugar caster, also known as a sugar shaker or muffineer. This object is a small, typically cylindrical or baluster-shaped container, designed for sprinkling finely ground sugar over food. Perforated Dome Lid: The top section is domed and perforated with decorative cut-outs, facilitating the even distribution of sugar. Central Finial: A small, turned finial surmounts the lid, serving as a decorative element and a point of grip. Tapered Body: The main body of the caster tapers downwards, resting on a circular foot. Decorative Banding: The rim where the lid meets the body features a decorative band, likely incorporating a foliate or patterned design, and a cartouche containing initials. Hallmarks: Visible
