Description

Pair of Antique Qing Chinese Blue & White Porcelain Vases Kangxi Marks Circa 19th Century Each vase features a six-sided baluster profile, with distinct angles along the body, neck, and foot. The vases are adorned with hand-painted motifs executed in shades of cobalt blue. These decorations include rectangular panels on each facet, enclosing figural scenes. Surrounding these panels and on other sections of the vases, patterns of foliage, scrolls, and borders are present. The items are constructed from porcelain, coated with a transparent glaze that covers the underglaze blue decoration. The colour scheme is limited to white and variations of blue, a characteristic of Chinese blue and white porcelain. The style and decoration align with characteristics observed in Chinese ceramics,
