Sterling silver goblet crafted by C J Vander Ltd in 1973. It features a bowl, a stem, and a base, characteristic of traditional goblet forms. The surface displays a textured finish on both the base and the lower portion of the bowl, suggesting a hand-worked or hammered effect. As a piece of English sterling silver, it would bear specific hallmarks, including the maker's mark "C.J.V" or "CJVR" for C J Vander Ltd, the London Assay Office mark, and the Lion Passant indicating its sterling silver composition, alongside the date letter corresponding to 1973.
