Description

This pair of mahogany armchairs is an exquisite example of mid-19th century craftsmanship. The traditional seats are upholstered in a geometrically patterned pink fabric, adding a touch of color and sophistication. These armchairs rest on knuckle legs with castors at the front, offering both elegance and mobility, while the rear legs are saber-shaped, ensuring stability and style. The armrests, decorated with rosettes, are supported by generously scrolled consoles, adding a sculptural dimension to these pieces. The patina of these armchairs is particularly remarkable, testifying to their age and the quality of the materials used. These armchairs are not only functional seats, but also works of art that bring a touch of history and refinement to any interior. Period: Early 19th
