Description

A set of five glazed earthenware pieces typical of 18th-century Delftware production. Hand-painted in vivid polychrome, depicting scenes of people, architecture, and hot-air balloons in a stylized landscape, framed by large orange and blue flowers. The lids of the side pots are topped with a bird in relief. The glaze shows chips, glaze jumps, and some visible losses, particularly on the necks of the vases, consistent with the age of the set.
