Description

Edouard Daliphard (1833-1877) He first studied law in Paris, and began working as a notary's clerk in Rouen. His taste for drawing led him away from this path and to the Rouen School of Fine Arts in the studio of Gustave Morin. Around 1859, he left Rouen and went to the Netherlands and Belgium. He studied at the schools of Antwerp, The Hague, Amsterdam, Rotterdam and at the Brussels Academy in the studio of Joseph Quinaux. There he perfected his representation of landscape subjects. Édouard Daliphard spent a long time in the Orient, from where he brought back numerous studies and watercolors. He is buried in the monumental cemetery of Rouen. Large French school painting in oil on canvas depicting a shepherd on horseback with his cows. It is signed lower right E. Daliphard 1861 This
