Description

Superb Art Nouveau period night light in patinated spelter, representing a young harvester wearing a headscarf, leaning over a wicker harvest basket, filled with grapes. The decoration is enhanced by large amber glass beads evoking bunches, which light up when switched on and diffuse a soft and warm light. The whole demonstrates the naturalistic taste specific to Art Nouveau, with remarkable work of detail: the braiding of the basket, the bunches of grapes, the drapery of the dress and the delicate expression of the face. The electrification has been revised, the lamp works perfectly with a twisted cord in the old style. Characteristics: Period: Art Nouveau (late 19th - early 20th century) Material: patinated spelter Subject: young girl with a harvest basket Lighting decoration: amber glass beads Lighting:
