Description

Elegant three-drawer bedside chest, probably of Roman origin, crafted in Central Italy in the mid-18th century. The piece displays a refined and harmonious line: the front is shaped with a gentle "S" movement, while the sides are slightly chamfered, creating a balanced and elegant profile. The top, front and sides are decorated with panels of walnut burr, framed by fine bois de rose inlays, in keeping with the decorative taste of central Italian cabinetmaking of the period. The drawer interiors, in poplar, further confirm this provenance. Structurally sound, the chest is in good condition, with a restoration to one leg and minor consolidations, consistent with its age and not detracting from its quality or authenticity. Size: width 69 cm; depth 37 cm; height 80 cm. For further information,
