Description

Magnificent jewelry box with a sloping lid, from the Art Nouveau / Jugendstil period, in the style of the works of Alfred Louis Daguet. The wooden structure of this box, whose shape evokes that of a reliquary, is covered with hammered and embossed tin plates forming a decoration of mistletoe branches. The plates are fixed to the wooden core by pretty flower-shaped rivets. The box locks with a small ornate key, revealing when opened an interior lined with a floral patterned fabric. Note some slight wear on the tin plates which are visible in the photos. Weight: 730 grams.
