Ivory bracelet with gold and silver thread - 19th century
This refined 19th century bracelet embodies the understated elegance of an era when jewelry was as much about meaning as it was about aesthetics. Crafted with meticulous care, it combines noble materials: a delicate tangle of subtly intertwined gold and silver threads. This sensitive piece of jewelry could have belonged to a lady of the bourgeoisie or have been offered as a token of affection, as a sentimental jewel. It testifies to the refined taste and art of living of the 19th century. Made from ivory worked before July 1, 1947, this bracelet complies with EC regulation 338/97 of December 9, 1996, article 2-wcm. Inner diameter: 6.3 cm. Thickness: 0.5 cm.
