Description

A refined wooden panel, decorated with carvings and inlays. The heron symbolizes calm, grace, and balance. Its composition reflects the harmony of nature. Each element, from the feathers to the petals, is made of stone, which gives it relief and depth. The ornamental frame, richly carved and gilded, emphasizes the decorative character. On the frame, a wax seal bearing the inscription "PERMISSION" and the number 802 is affixed. This could be an official export permit, a museum inventory, or an author's confirmation. These seals were often used in the mid-20th century to mark decorative objects passing through customs or cultural institutions. This object will become a decorative element of your interior.
