Beautiful cut crystal model from the early 1940s produced until the 1990s, a luxurious version of the Piccadilly model, Buckingham presents in addition to its "cousin" a hexagonal section foot and a star-cut base, a detail known for its luxury in the crystal factory's production. Produced after 1936, the date on which the crystal factory replaced the label, which came off after a few washes, with the acid-etched stamp, Buckingham glasses are always signed.
