Description

Louis XVI console table in mahogany and mahogany veneer - late 18th century. White Italian marble top, surrounded by an openwork brass gallery. In the lower part, a white marble crotch shelf embedded in a mahogany surround. The uprights are fluted brass columns. It opens with a drawer and rests on four ringed spinning top feet and small cylindrical sabots. Late 18th century period. H x W x D = 88 x 114 x 45 cm
This beautiful and large console table is in excellent condition, it has been restored and revarnished in our workshop. The marbles are original and in good condition (note a small accident in the corner on the lower part). Locks with original keys. It is similar to certain Molitor models from the late 18th century.
