Description
-------------

Robust and elegant rectangular table in washed walnut, light with crossed struts, loaf legs with twisted body, a drawer on the front, molded wooden top. A decorative piece from the early 17th century in Louis XIII style, of quality and proud appearance with its washed and light blond color; this treated piece is pleasant due to its easy-to-place proportion and the imprint of its presence faithful to the careful furniture of this end of the Renaissance, a stylish and decorative piece and very appropriately coming from a castle in Cantal; an authentic piece of practical and opulent furniture (circa 1620)
