Description

Important group of three figures, depicting the Oath of the Rütli, in 19th-century bronze. The Oath of the Rütli paved the way for the future autonomy of the Swiss Confederation. According to legend, the Three Swiss are the representatives of the original cantons who swore an oath on the Rütli meadow in 1291 or 1307, making them the founders of the Confederation (Founding Myths). Beautiful brown patina. I haven't found a signature. I remain at your disposal for any further information or photos.ous renseignements ou photos supplémentaires.
