Description

Rectangular walnut table, Veneto, 17th century, Louis XVI style. The piece features an elegant rectangular top (87 x 52 cm, height 73 cm), supported by four round-section turned legs with refined fluting. The upper part of the legs displays a typical narrowing with a crown of small beaded elements, from which the vertical fluting develops. The lower section is enriched by a turned decoration with stylized ovolo motifs, adding both movement and lightness to the overall design. Its sober and well-balanced structure, combined with the quality of the craftsmanship, makes this piece a fine example of a small writing or entrance table from the Venetian tradition. The warm walnut patina, matured over time, enhances its value and authenticity. For further information,
