Description

Alexandre Louis Jacob was a French landscape painter, born on August 14, 1876 in Paris and died on March 22, 1972 in Créteil. A student of Eugène Claude at the Académie des Beaux-Arts, he specialized in the representation of atmospheric and luminous landscapes, often inspired by the banks of the Seine, particularly in Asnières-sur-Seine where he lived. His works are distinguished by a muted palette and a serene atmosphere, mixing realism and poetry. Jacob exhibited regularly at the Paris Salon from 1899 and became a member of the Société des artistes français. His style, marked by a delicate touch and a search for light, earned him international recognition, particularly after the Second World War, when his paintings were exhibited in Europe, the United States, and South America.
