Description

Flower-shaped brooch of exceptional quality both in terms of the materials it is made of and its production. In platinum, it probably dates from the 1960s... Its center is adorned with an old-cut diamond (therefore coming from an older jewel), surrounded by a corolla of eight pear-shaped rubies with a deep red color (poorly rendered by the photos, and which would deserve to be appreciated visually), and with fine crystallization, offering a particularly rare liveliness within this colored precious stone. The diamonds, just as qualitative, are omnipresent throughout the rest of the jewel, even on the stem, made up exclusively of baguette-cut diamonds... the smallest leaf of the stem is represented by a pretty navette while the rest of the jewel is paved with brilliant-cut diamonds.
