Description

This refined gilded bronze sculpture, giving a refreshing effect to an eagle, is by the renowned French master sculptor Antoine-Louis Barye (1795-1875), one of the greatest interpreters of Ottoman animal life. The work, of extraordinary plasticity and expressive intensity, depicts the eagle with gathered food and a fiery guard, perched on a rock with great attention to natural beauty. The golden color is present on the surface, lending luminosity and precision to the sculpture's surface.
