

Edouard-wilfred Buquet, Pendulum Lamp, 20th Century

2 500 EUR

Period : 20th century

Condition : Bon état

Material : Brass

Diameter : 13 cm

Height : 54 cm

Description

Nickel-plated brass desk lamp with an articulated arm ending in a counterweight, resting on a circular wooden base. With its modernist aesthetic with clean geometric lines and functional design, it reflects the very essence of Art Deco. A metal plaque affixed to the back of the base bears the inscriptions "BUQUET"; "BTÉ SGD" and "PARIS". Edouard-Wilfred Buquet (1866-?) is a French designer best known for his flexible two-armed desk lamp "EB27" which he designed in 1925 and for which he received a patent from the Ministry of Commerce and Industry in Paris on February 9, 1927. He would go on to create several variations of this lamp until 1940. MoMA now holds a copy of the original "EB27" model. Lampshade missing. Slight signs of wear on the wooden base. Good
