Description

ACCOLAY copper and resin wall light, 1950s. This handcrafted wall light is a rare creation from the Accolay workshop, a collective of ceramists and designers active in the Yonne region between 1945 and the 1980s. A true collector's item, it combines a hammered copper structure with a decorative part in translucent resin, creating a subtle play of light and material. The design, both brutalist and organic, evokes the artistic experimentation of the 1960s and 1970s. Each Accolay piece was unique, produced in small series or in isolated copies, which gives this wall light a real decorative and historical value. Ideal for lovers of French craftsmanship, vintage design and sculptural atmospheres. Discover all our other products on our website: www.llantiquites.com
