Description

Pair of finely chiseled and silvered bronze candelabras, Rococo style, dating from the 19th century. Each piece rests on a tiered, eventful base, decorated with wide twisted fluting extending into a slender shaft punctuated with gadroons and volutes. Each candelabra offers eight light arms arranged in a corolla around a central shaft, providing ample lighting. The system can be dismantled into two parts, which allows for modular use: either as a complete candelabra or as a simple one-candle candlestick. The refined decoration, both floral and eventful. Reinterpretations of the Louis XV and Rococo styles.
