Trained at Saint-Luc in Molenbeek-Saint-Jean and Schaerbeek, and at the Brussels Academy with Anto Carte. Initially a surrealist close to Magritte, he moved towards lyrical abstraction. This evolution led him to less figurative worlds in which abyssal vegetation appears, a sprawling fauna conducive to spectral forms, thorny nutshells or anthropomorphic silhouettes adorned with ermine or sumptuous mold. In the press (His impeccable technique is imbued with great magic." (A. Nardon). Professor at the Academy of Brussels from 1967 to 1981. He was also active as a decorator, muralist and
