Description

Pair of Louis XV period cabriolets - 18th century
Elegant pair of richly carved natural walnut wood cabriolets, 18th century period, Louis XV style.

The violin-shaped backs are adorned with delicate moldings and end with a fine stylized shell, typical of the Rococo aesthetic. The armrests are sinuous and finely movement, resting on carved consoles. The wide and comfortable seats, with a movement belt, rest on graceful curved legs ending in a scroll. The upholstery is covered with an elegant fabric with ivory silk floral decoration, highlighted by a finish of upholstery nails. Work from the Louis XV period, 18th century, combining refinement and comfort in the purest tradition of French furniture.
