Description

Jean Baptiste Cipriani (1727-1785) was an Italian artist who spent a large part of his career in England, receiving important commissions from the nobility. He collaborated on his engravings in particular, as here, with Francesco Bartolozzi (1727-1815). This elegant engraving is in its original late 18th century frame. Some small old accidents to the frame, otherwise in good condition. A copper ring allows the frame to be hung.
