Description

This pair of Italian bombe chests of drawers boast a classic, voluptuous, and curvaceous silhouette and were beautifully crafted in the 1950s. Made from walnut with an inlaid veneer, they feature attractive figures arranged in a decorative pattern reminiscent of patchwork. The tops are also adorned with geometric veneer inlays, creating a framed effect that enhances their elegance. Each chest has two large lower drawers and a thinner upper drawer, providing functional storage while maintaining the curved aesthetic. The drawers have ornate metal handles in traditional Rococo forms. The cabriole legs are gracefully curved and finish with a scroll, common in Louis XV and Rococo Revival furniture. A subtle carving on the apron (bottom center of the front) of each chest of drawers adds a subtle decorative touch. A
