Description

Monastery prie-dieu from the 17th century. The rounded, field-turned arches of the belt are assembled by connecting dice. The openwork convex crotch is also enhanced by connecting dice on embuted moldings. The baluster uprights offer an alternation of top, ring and spindle. The base follows the same arched harmony. (17cm)
The protruding top alternates between oval and coat of arms. Rare piece. Delivery possible not included in the price.
