Description

19th Century British Colonial Teak and Woven Rattan StoolA charming late 19th-century teak and woven rattan stool or luggage stand that effortlessly combines style and functionality. This well-proportioned piece features a rectangular teak frame with traditional peg joinery, showcasing the craftsmanship of the era. The original woven rattan top is in excellent condition, with no damage, and is complemented by a large, loose upholstered cushion for added comfort. The stool is elevated on tapering, turned, reeded legs, offering both stability and elegance. Its versatile design allows it to be used not only as a stool or luggage stand but also as a unique coffee table, making it a practical addition to any home.
