Description

Sculpture representing Tintya or acintya, divinity of fire, in a dancing and fluid posture: the slender body stretches gracefully, the open arms outline the movement of the flames, and the details of the face translate the powerful and protective energy of this divinity. Each curve of the wood evokes the lightness of a sacred dance, where the destructive force of fire becomes an energy of purification and renewal. Tintya are quite rare on the market because they are very difficult to carve and quite popular with collectors. Details of the work Superb quality of sculpture. Artist: K. ARIA MAS BALI (Signature under the base) Origin: Bali, Indonesia around 1950-70 Material: solid Suar wood carved and polished Theme: Tintia, god of fire, sun, fertility and guardian of the southeast Height: 32 cm Condition: a crack giving
