Description

This beautiful necklace is designed to be worn as a "dog collar". It is composed of two interlocking rows of satin-finished gray mother-of-pearl cabochons framed by four filigree motifs and holds a six-petal flower pendant of the same construction as a central ornament. The finely decorated clasp is a box-type snap clasp, perfectly functional. The satin finish and the color of the gray mother-of-pearl give a superb cat's eye stone effect with iridescent green-brown and pink reflections. Please note: A small flower is missing from the connection of three of the cabochons, but you have to look carefully to see it.

Unmarked silver, tested with a touchstone.

Beautiful condition for this very unusual piece of jewelry! 19th century period. Length 38cm, width

2.6cm, height at the pendant 7cm Weight 74g
