Description

Very beautiful antique double glazed door in a beautiful blond oak, replica made in the 19th century of identical doors from an 18th century castle near Toulouse (southwest). It has the generous and graceful rounded molding typical of this period. It must have simulated an entrance door because it never had a lock or latch, likewise it was never painted, it is therefore almost new, without previous drilling. Dimensions height 246 cm width 149 cm (74 + 75) The uprights of each leaf being quite wide (11 to 12.5 cm), the total width of the door can be reduced to 131 cm. Similarly the door can be reduced in height by 7 cm to reduce the sill (height 239 cm). Beautiful old material, opulent and robust, which can be used as an entrance door or room separation door, it can be inserted into an 18th century building by
