Description

Pair of stools with four quadrangular legs, connected by offset cylindrical struts, creating a rhythmic play in the structure. Designed by Charlotte Perriand, these models are part of her overall work on interior architecture and equipment for the La Pierra Menta building, designed as part of the vast Les Arcs project. Created in 1979, these stools illustrate the search for robust, functional furniture adapted to collective life in the mountains. Discovered in a fully equipped La Pierra Menta apartment, they constitute a rare piece, a direct witness to the layout designed by Perriand. Provenance: La Pierra Menta building, Arc 1800, created in 1979.
