Description

Pair of Empire period candelabras, in patinated bronze and gilded with matte and shiny gold. Each candelabra represents the winged figure of Victory draped in a long pleated dress in the antique style, the raised arms supporting a bouquet with four light arms decorated with a bust of a winged woman, topped with a socket decorated with palmettes. The central shaft, chiseled with foliage, ending in a corolla, is topped with a flame. Each Victory rests on a half sphere decorated with laurel leaves, carried by a quadrangular base decorated on three sides with a lyre and palmettes ending in a plinth with a water leaf motif. Work circa 1815, to be compared to the Thomire invoice, in very good condition, in its original gilding. (pierced for electricity.)
