Description

Small Neo-Classical console in painted hammered metal and composite wood made by Jean-Maurice Rothschild (1902-1998). Famous French decorator and designer whose most famous works were made for the ocean liner "Le Normandie", as well as for the furniture of the Eiffel Tower restaurant. Work from the middle of the 20th century. Surprising small console to hang (thanks to its two hooks located on the back), representing an intriguing character made of molded wood. Topped with a slightly veined white marble, intact with a thickness of 2 cm. Good general condition. Delivery with insurance included, possible throughout France for an amount of 80 euros.
