Description

Very elegant Louis XVI style portico clock, from the Napoleon III period, signed Camelin, a clockmaker listed in the Tardy dictionary of French clockmakers. Made of white Carrara marble, it features four columns with a base and capitals. High-quality gilt bronze ornamentation featuring a large garland and a cascade of flowers, embellished with rows of pearls, foliage, and numerous flower vases framed by two openwork balustrades. Large, domed white enamel dial decorated with floral garlands, accompanied by finely crafted gilt hands and protected by domed glass. The space between the columns is animated by a beautiful sunburst pendulum. Original mechanism without modification. Hour and half-hour strikes on an antique bell.
