Description

One-drawer bedside table, entirely built in solid walnut, including the structure and back panels. The top and the three visible sides are covered with a thick walnut veneer, showcasing the craftsmanship typical of south-central Italy in the early 19th century, during the Empire period. Balanced proportions, clean lines, and the quality of the wood give this piece a timeless elegance. Condition: unrestored, but in good usable condition. A light restoration will be enough to bring back its original splendor.
