This Louis XV-style sideboard is made of walnut and dates from the late 18th or early 19th century. Typical of Charente furniture, it opens on the front with three doors topped with three small drawers. Its lower crosspiece is beautifully fretworked and carved, the whole being embellished with beautiful polished iron fittings. The piece of furniture, blond in color with an old wax patina, has undergone a small restoration on the top (right-hand side).
