Description

Here's an iconic piece of 1950s French design, a modernist wall lamp that combines elegance and functionality. This lamp is made of lacquered aluminum sheet, with a warm yellow exterior and a white interior, creating a subtle and refined contrast. Its diabolo-shaped reflector is pierced with multiple small stars near the edges, adding a poetic and luminous touch to its design. Thanks to a brass ball joint, the reflector is fully adjustable, allowing you to direct the light as needed. The extendable brass arms offer great flexibility, while the dual lighting direction makes this lamp versatile for any space. A remarkable detail: a brass ring integrates two switches, one of which is always functional, for easy lighting control. With shade diameters of 35 cm and 12.7 cm, as well as a height of 29.5 cm, this lamp adapts perfectly to various environments. When fully extended, it reaches a maximum length of 105 cm, ideal for stylishly illuminating a room. This model was designed by René MATHIEU, an iconic designer, and produced by Ets R. LUNEL, a renowned Parisian manufacturer. It is in good overall condition, with only a few traces of old scratches inside the reflector, almost invisible to the naked eye. The metal wall mount ensures a solid and durable installation. Perfect for lovers of vintage design, this lamp brings a touch of authenticity and sophistication to any interior.
