Description

An elegant hand-painted faience ornamental mandolin, made by the Fourmaitreaux Frères factory in Desvres (Pas-de-Calais, France) in the early 20th century. The polychrome decoration with floral motifs and "Rouen-style" scrolls is typical of Desvres's production, which reinterpreted the traditions of French ceramics in a decorative manner. The black ceramic pegs faithfully imitate those of a real instrument, a testament to the attention to detail and taste of the period for musical furnishings.
