Description

Yellow lacquered wood wall coat rack, anonymous work probably under the direction of Le Corbusier, circa 1952. It is composed of six wooden coat hooks, carved into solid hooks and fixed to a rectangular board of yellow lacquered wood. Sober and functional, this model is typical of the developments designed for the Cité Radieuse in Marseille in the early 1950s. With its simple, robust and colorful treatment, it illustrates the modernist desire to integrate practical and standardized elements into daily life, in line with the architectural project of the Unité d'Habitation. Provenance: Cité Radieuse, Marseille, circa 1952
