Description

18th century castle arcade in white limestone
Provenance: castle in northern France
Superb 18th century arcade made of white limestone, a testament to French architectural know-how. Its elegant lines and balanced proportions recall the noble and refined aesthetic of the stately homes of the period. The stone, patinated by time, shows magnificent traces of natural wear and a nuanced shade of verdigris, giving the room an authentic charm and a rare sculptural presence. The molding details and lateral volutes add a remarkable decorative dimension. This archway can be integrated into an interior architecture, a winter garden or an exceptional decorative project, as shown in the first image (generated by AI) illustrating an example of contemporary design.
