Description

Ancient trough in Limousin sandstone dating from the 18th century. It was formerly used for watering animals. Today, this trough serves more as a decorative object. It can be repurposed in multiple ways: converted into a fountain, used as a planter, or simply placed in a garden as a striking feature. The trough has a truncated shape at one end, giving it an original and characterful profile (see photos). Please refer to the diagram to fully understand its complete dimensions (Weight of approximately 150kg)
