Description

Oil on canvas by Jean-Gabriel Domergue (1889-1962), titled on the back by the artist "Dans la prairie verte". The work depicts an elegant woman in a hat, naked in the grass with, on her left side, a large black and white long-haired greyhound, creating a reminder of the beauty's headdress. Between 1940 and 1945, Jean-Gabriel Domergue produced a series of works depicting elegant women naked in meadows. The greyhound, an animal with curves admired by the artist, quickly became the only breed of dog painted by Domergue. It can be found in many themes, ranging from nudes in meadows to the Venice carnival, including Parisian social evenings. The painting is in a very good state of conservation. Signed lower left. The work is listed in the artist's archives and a certificate of
