Description

In this light-filled work, signed and dated 1906, the artist offers us a peaceful and poetic view of a rolling landscape crossed by a shimmering river, while the cloud-laden sky is pierced by majestic sunlight. The central scene features a lone woman, walking calmly among the wildflowers of a verdant field. Around her, a few chickens peck peacefully, adding a touch of rural life and simplicity to this already serene painting. The play of light piercing the clouds gives the scene an almost spiritual dimension, accentuating the contrast between the dense sky and the peaceful softness of the earth. The eye is irresistibly drawn to the horizon, bathed in light, where the sky seems to embrace the valley in a golden glow.
